LINDBLOM TECHNICAL HIGH SCHOOL

TECHNICAL HIGH SCHOOL

Foreword

Time in all its varied aspects is each student's monitor. Through the procession of days, weeks, and months that constitute the school year, each second of Time aids the student in acquiring the skills and values which are designed to make him a competent member of adult society. Whether it is those precious minutes that save him from the tardy bell or those meaningful hours that help him gain more knowledge from his books, Time plays a major role in the student's school life.

Finally, when the changing years have marked the progress from freshman to senior, the graduate is astonished that his high school career has passed so quickly. A sense of fulfillment comes to him as he reviews his life at Lindblom. Achievement in classes has stimulated his mental capacities; participation in activities has widened his circle of friends; an interest in school affairs has enriched his pattern of living. Each day has offered some measure of study and fun, and each hour has recorded some remembrance of life at Lindblom. This edition of the Eagle of 1953 invites you to turn back the clock and enjoy RELIVING THE YEAR.

Through The Year

MR. HARRY F. YATES . . .

Mr. Yates is a sympathetic counselor and friendly administrator who endeavors to give Lindblomites a school of which they can be proud. He seeks to provide maximum educational opportunities for each student and to develop in everyone a true civic consciousness. Despite the heavy demands made upon his time as principal, he can be counted upon to applaud and encourage Lindblom's efforts in athletic contests and extra-curricular activities. During the ten years he has been at Lindblom, Mr. Yates has demonstrated his ability as a capable executive and an enthusiastic leader of youth.

With Our Staff

IN RESIDENCE AT LINDBLOM

To Miss Varian Shea, superintendent of District Four, high school boys and girls are very special persons, and she is deeply concerned with the interests and abilities of each one. Since her office is in our school, Miss Shea can observe Lindblom students at work and at play and become better acquainted with all aspects of our school life.

MR. EDGAR PALMER

Our assistant principal, Mr. Palmer, is responsible for many essential details of school policy. His varied schedule ranges from the organization of classes to the counseling of students. In whatever he does, his fine spirit of friendliness and his good sense of humor are clearly in evidence.

ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANTS

Mrs. Mabel Rademacher and Mrs. Beryldine Wilbur, administrative aids to Mr. Yates, are in charge of the new system of student registration that became effective in February, 1953.

Scheduled For Special Services

Miss Gladys Crisman, Adjustment Teacher.

Mr. Miles Shore and Mr. Michael Bach, Attendance Counselors.

Mr. John Alvir, Placement Counselor.

Mrs. Gussie Atkinson, Miss Margaret Howatt, and Mrs. Esther Macdonald, Attendance Counselors.

Mr. Irwin Brazill, Mrs. Joanne Tafel, Miss Geraldine Wright, Miss Kathleen Shannon, and Miss Gertrude Dunleavy, Office Staff.

Mrs. Ann Amthor, Matron.

Industrial Arts... The Power of Machinery

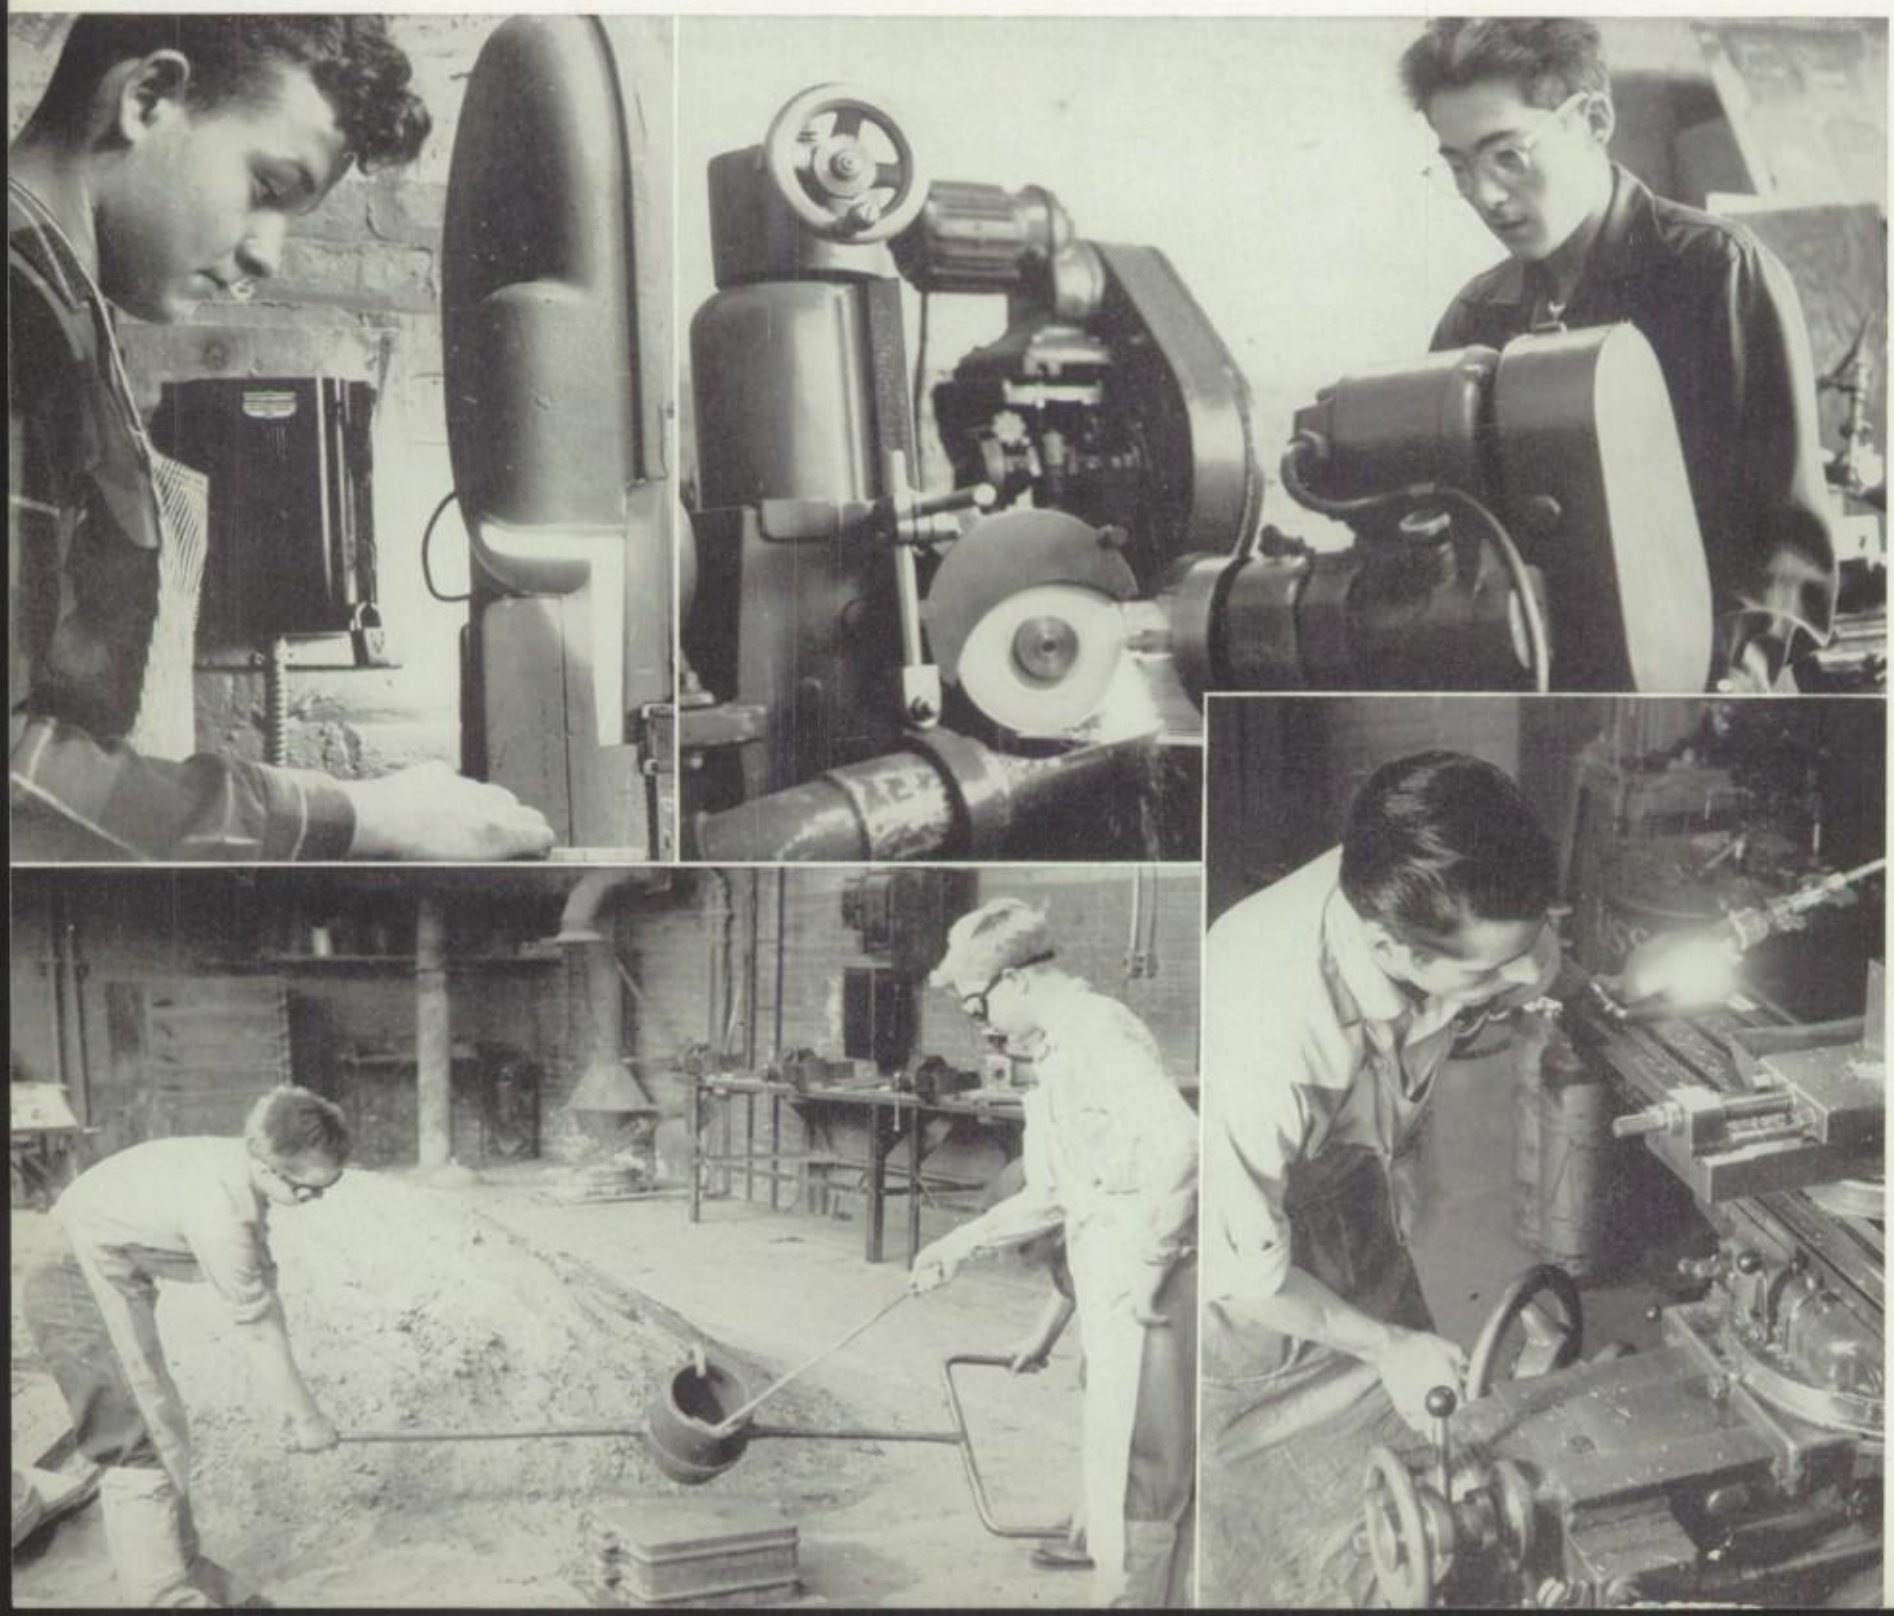
Boys who are adept with their hands and desirous of a good occupational skill will find that training in the technical department prepares them for a large variety of jobs. In their classes they learn how to work with various tools, how to handle different kinds of machinery, and how to design mechanical apparatus. Well-trained workers familiar with the basic patterns of technology are an asset in our industrial society.

OPPOSITE PAGE

MACHINISTS OF TOMORROW . . . Intricate machinery of all types is managed efficiently by this crew of dependable young workers.

BELOW

CRAFTSMEN AT WORK . . . Many and varied are the tasks done by the boys who specialize in shop classes. One of the boys inspects the band saw while Donald Manzella gets ready to use the cylindrical grinder. In the foundry James Ruffolo and Richard Wernli pour the hot metal into the mold. The numerous screws and gadgets on the milling machine offer no problem to Robert Weiss who knows the secret of its operation.



PEACE

English... Communication of Ideas

The interpretation of the printed word, the art of creative listening, the development of written expression, and the ability to speak effectively are the four aspects of language study with which our English curriculum is concerned. Adequate growth in each of these areas is the aim of every student and the goal of every class in English. The clear expression of one's own ideas and a thoughtful evaluation of the opinions of others are accomplishments which always merit admiration.

OPPOSITE PAGE

LIBRARY BOOK FAIR . . . A center of activity for all departments in the school is the library. During National Book Week in November "Open House" was held so that everyone might become acquainted with the new books on display.

LABELING THE NEWS . . . Robert Krueger and Agnes Bures are learning writing skills in the Journalism class where the elementary principles of reporting are taught to budding journalists.

LITERARY MODERNS . . . Arline Jensen, Lois Jenkins, Julian Reppelt, and Armand Dusablon compare notes in a senior course in English as they discuss fascinating novels of adventure by contemporary writers.

SHAKESPEARE ON RECORD . . . Many enjoyable hours are spent by students like Jerry Cohen and Joyce Engel listening to the great classics of English literature.

THE SCRIPT CALLS FOR GOOD DICTION . . . Members of the Drama class emphasize correct habits of speech and ease of performance as they rehearse an amusing situation from a one-act play they are producing.

Home Arts... Design for Gracious Living

ABOVE

FASHIONING A NEW WARDROBE . . . These young seamstresses are busily engaged in planning and sewing clothes which they will be proud to wear. Carol Hengst, Carol Willand, Charlene Smitt, Joyce Engel, Ilomay Martin, Myrna Williams.

IN THE COOKERY CORNER . . . Tempting aromas invite one to step into this kitchen and sample the culinary proficiency that is being displayed.

BELOW

DINNER ETIQUETTE FOR YOUNG HOSTESSES . . . After enjoying a nutritious meal, the guests are anticipating with delight the delectable dessert which their hostess is about to serve.
Nancy Willett, Margaret Rullman, Ellen Reid, Kathleen Kouacich, and Elaine Barbarek.

Girls find that it is a pleasant experience to work in the spacious Home Arts rooms where, surrounded by modern equipment, they become familiar with the fundamental steps in good homemaking. Their "repertoire" includes, among other things, the concocting of delicious cakes and the creating of lovely gowns. Home-planning methods which emphasize efficiency, economy, and good taste are introduced through actual experimentation in the Home Arts laboratories. Every girl in this department has the good fortune to acquire many splendid ideas for maintaining an attractive home.

Mathematics...

Formula for Effective Thinking

Such terms as equation, theorem, radical, and isosceles are very familiar to math students. Step by step they learn to analyze problems in which these words are used. Numerical values, mathematical symbols, and geometrical forms become meaningful as they construct angles and draw polygons with the aid of compasses or protractors. Each one has a chance to apply his math in practical situations when he reads graphs, estimates amounts, and determines distances.

BELOW

HIGH-SPEED MATHEMATICS . . . The slide rule proves a real attraction for these mathematical wizards as they evaluate its usefulness in relation to problems in advanced math.

Barbara Frombach, Ellen Francis, Jeanine Green, David Gruver, John Cainski, and David Putnam.

Science...Survey of the Cosmos

ABOVE

HOW GREEN IS OUR GARDEN . . . Sylvia Detlaf, Gene Eggert, William Guhl, and Carol Hengst can identify many different plants since their work in the greenhouse brings them into close contact with various types of foliage and flora.

JOURNEY TO THE STARS . . . With the help of the planetarium model general science students study interesting phases of astronomy.

CHALLENGING THE ELEMENTS . . . Chemistry students Tony Mock, Edward Jung, and Thomasine Smiley test the combustion of oxygen.

SEEING DOUBLE . . . The mirror and lens demonstration in physics is conducted by Fran Harnack and Tom Hawks.

Whether he is working in the growing room or in the laboratory, whether he is using helpful apparatus or resource units, the science student endeavors to find out more concerning the world around him. He investigates topics ranging from the anatomy of the earthworm to the sources of atomic energy. At all levels of the science curriculum he explores the mysteries of the universe and learns to appreciate the contributions of applied science to modern living.

History and Language... Windows on the World

ABOVE

FOCUS ON HISTORY . . . Movies that teach supply necessary information and add pleasure to class sessions as is evident in this photograph of Mr. Sommer's U. S. history group.

Reading and discussion are important in the study of history, but modern inventions like the camera and television reveal a three dimensional view of history that is unique. "On the spot" recording of the historical panorama helps students keep pace with the epoch-making events of the moment and develops an awareness of the role of both stability and change in the growth of nations.

Familiarity with a foreign language opens the door to new interests and achievements. Learning Spanish, French, or Latin promotes good fellowship with people of other countries and acquaints one with the culture and customs prevailing in various parts of the world. To be able to speak or read in a foreign tongue is a very rewarding personal experience, as any language learner knows.

OPPOSITE PAGE

CONTINENTAL ATMOSPHERE . . . The pageantry of the past and the enchantment of travel have a special appeal for language students Marilyn Strobel, Arlene Steigal, James Hickey, and Tom Stoginski who are looking at articles from Mexico and France.

Music...Program For Enrichment

The music department provides the boys and girls of Lindblom with a chance to extend their knowledge in this field and to exhibit any aptitudes they may possess. Classes in music appreciation give an insight into the lives of great composers and an acquaintance with different forms of musical composition. Through the orchestra, choir, chorus, or band the individual may participate in the musical activity which appeals most to him.

STRINGS CAPTURE THE RHYTHM . . . Note reading is a basic step in learning the fundamentals of music and is a necessary requirement for choral and instrumental work.
Row 1—Ray Gantt, Patricia Bell, Diane Paluszek
Row 2—Otto Shaden, David Controrer, Theresa Setzke

Art...Media For Self-Expression

REALISM IN ART . . . Aspiring artists are engrossed in the serious task of sketching a live model, Penny Mazur, a drum majorette.

Temperas, brushes, and pencils are indispensable tools with which the student learns to express himself in art. Harmony of color and design, balance and perspective are the principles of composition with which he learns to project his ideas. In our art classes every student has an opportunity both to discover and develop his potential talents and to cultivate an appreciation for all forms of art experience.

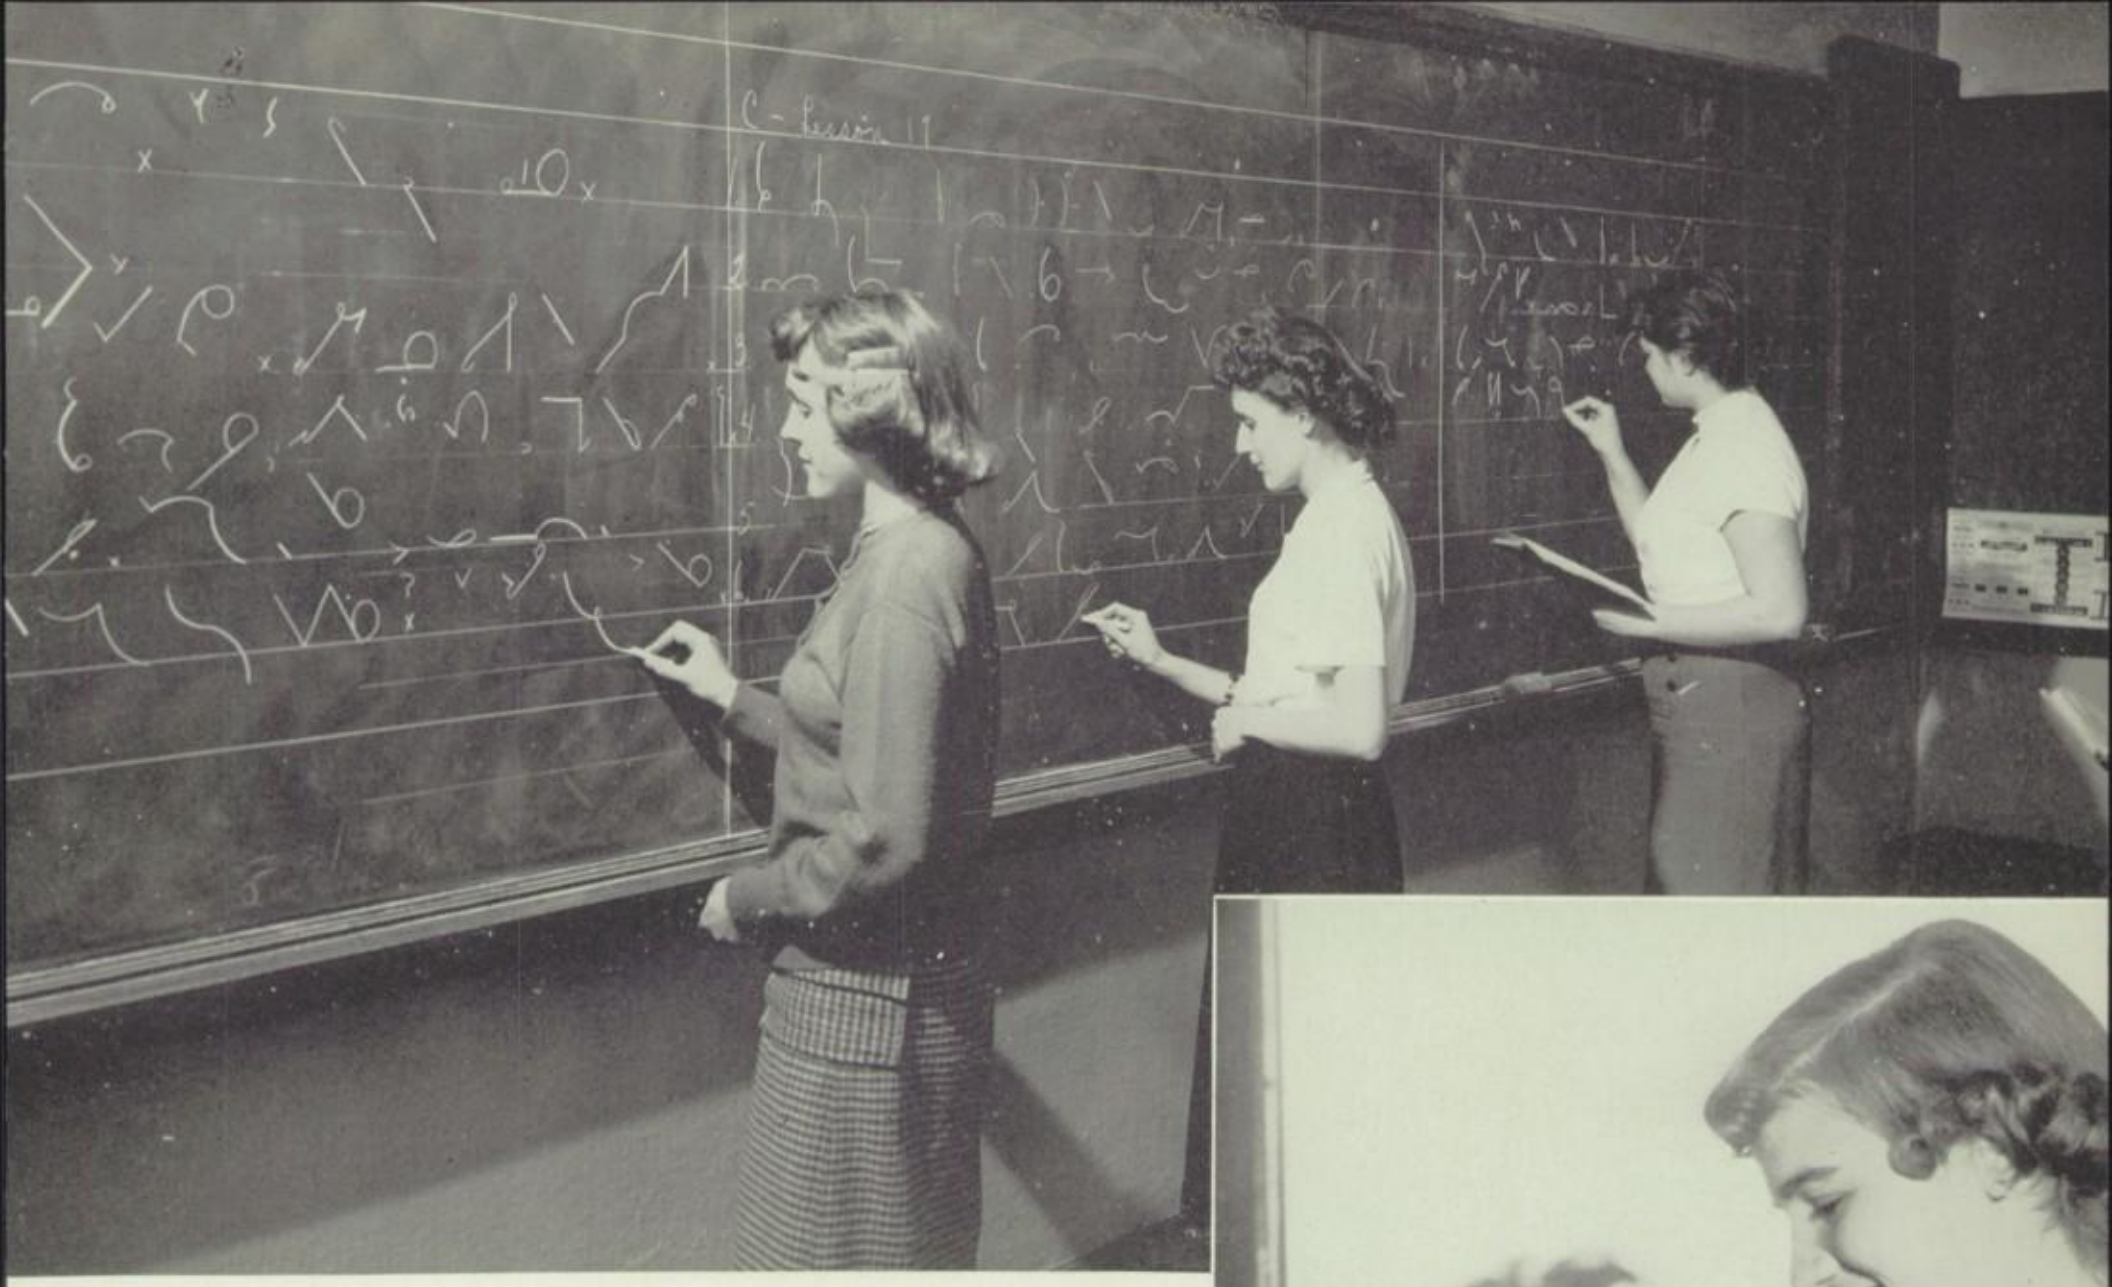
Social Studies...
Pageant of Human Progress

In civics classes students are instructed in the duties and responsibilities of good citizenship. Projects such as panel discussions, debates, and the enactment of political events help the future voters of the United States to secure a true understanding of democracy and our American heritage. Since a free society needs a well-informed citizenry, students learn to keep posted on current events of national and international significance. Society benefits when everyone knows the essential facts about the framework of his government.

INTERNATIONAL VIEWPOINTS . . . These students are examining products from other lands and pointing out exact geographical locations as they consider the extent of U.S. imports and exports.

CIVIC STUDENTS LEARN NEW METHODS OF VOTING . . . Mr. Kaplan demonstrates the technique of the voting machine to some members of his class.

IT WAS TIME FOR A CHANGE! . . . In conjunction with the nation-wide "Register and Vote Campaign" preceding November 4, Lindblom students are shown participating in a mock election.



PITMAN STRATEGY ON DISPLAY . . . The girls practice shorthand exercises on the blackboard in order to gain greater proficiency in learning the symbols.

QUICK COMPUTING . . . The basic procedures of arithmetic are speeded up with the calculating machine. Jerry Wolters knows its value in adding long columns of figures.

Commerce... Key To Economic Competence

Busy fingers and alert minds strive for speed, efficiency, and accuracy in learning stenographic, calculating, and bookkeeping skills. A mastery of the work in this field assures the student of a successful career in the business world. In addition to the classes which stress the basic procedures of good office practice, the commercial department offers courses designed to give general information about the economic and geographical factors which affect world trade and industry.

SECONDS THAT COUNT

With the opening of the second semester in February, Lindblom students were introduced to a new schedule of classes. A readjustment of the school program abolished A and B divisions. Under the new system all home room groups meet at the same time, and everyone enjoys a regular forty minute lunch period.

From all viewpoints the division session is a very significant part of the day. Important matters relating to school policy and pupil welfare are communicated to the entire student body during division. For the high school boy or girl the division session is a clearing house for activities and an opportunity for socialization. The success of all school undertakings depends upon the support received in the home room. Whether it is a football game, a subscription to the school newspaper, an I.C.C. project, or an assembly program, the efforts of both the administration and the student body are co-ordinated at division.

The division period is also a time for personal counseling and encouragement by home room teachers, those very special persons who are our guides for the four years of our high school career. Each division helps to build school morale; together, they all symbolize the spirit of Lindblom.

In Memoriam

Mr. Paul J. Rupprecht

On May 21, 1952, Mr. Paul J. Rupprecht, a member of Lindblom's faculty for twenty-seven years, passed away. For the last fourteen years he had served as placement counselor. A native Chicagoan, he received his education in this city.

Lindblom remembers with gratitude the long, able service of Paul Rupprecht. For many years, as counselor and teacher, he exerted a constructive influence upon the lives of numerous students. His broad sympathy, courageous manhood, high sense of personal responsibility, and generous spirit of self-sacrifice endeared him to thousands, and in their idealism and character he "weaves himself into eternity."

8TH PERIOD

"Like Mounting Larks, To the New Morning Sing"

With a song for every seascn and music to match every mood the A Cappella Choir contributes greatly to the enjoyment of life at Lindblom. This group, one of Lindblom's most active organizations, sings for many assemblies, give elaborate productions at Christmas and the Spring Festival, and makes personal appearances for club and civic groups throughout Chicago. The choir has brought fourteen shields to the walls of Keeler Hall, including an "S" won in the spring of 1952.

A memorable event of the year was "Metrical Madness," a merry musicale which was presented in November. A variety show, it featured typical Americana medleys, including "Ranch Rhythms," a fraternity singing scene, and a circus extravaganza. The proceeds of this performance were used to buy new robes for the choir.

One of the finest honors a choir member can receive is an invitation from Mr. Willard J. Congreve, the director, to join the Madrigals, a choral group which numbers sixteen beautiful voices. This selective group sings for special performances.

A Musical Parade of Melody

"L.T.H.S. . . . Hold that line!" While the stands cheer, the Lindblom Concert Band responds with the stirring strains of the Loyalty March, and, as the music echoes over the football field, all Lindblomites are inspired to root with greater zest for the team. Resplendent in their uniforms of maroon and gold and brandishing their shining instruments, the members of the Concert Band lend a dashing note to all school festivities. Band personnel was increased this year with the introduction of a drum majorette and two baton twirlers who provide animated leadership for our music-makers. A football game would seem incomplete without the enthusiastic support of the Concert Band, and their presence at assemblies always assures the audience of good entertainment. Mr. Christian Lyngby is their musical mentor.

Each day during third period strains of melody can be heard coming from room 213 where the Girls' Chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Dennis, is ardently practicing. This choral group has been recognized for years by its white skirts and blouses which are enhanced by maroon and gold bibs embossed with a G clef. In the spring of 1952 the Girls' Chorus won an "S" rating in choral competition with other Chicago high schools. Lindblomites who enjoyed the Thanksgiving program of the chorus and performances at school assemblies throughout the year can appreciate the significance of this award. The fine spirit of the chorus is manifest in the desire of the girls to share their love of music with various groups outside school for whom they often sing. Under the auspices of the American Red Cross a section of the chorus entertains at hospitals throughout Chicagoland and brings happiness to others through the magic of their melodies.

Delightful Syncopation

In Concert Style

Tschaikowsky to Anderson . . . Strauss to Foster . . . All music is equally well mastered by the Concert Orchestra under the direction of Mr. Christian Lyngby. The repertoire of the orchestra contains music of every type and music to suit every taste. The members of this group not only learn to play various instruments, but they also learn to appreciate the great classics of musical literature. Each member of the Concert Orchestra has the pleasure of sharing a love of good music with his fellow performers. Together the strings and the winds blend in unison to produce the rhythms of the masters. The music of the Concert Orchestra provides a fitting climax to each graduation ceremony in Keeler Hall.

Behind the Scenes With Our Prop Men

Cooperation is the keyword among the Stage Crew boys, for whether they are turning the spotlight on the orchestra or adjusting bulbs for dramatic lighting, they operate at high speed efficiency. Although they receive little public acknowledgment, these boys are the backbone of Lindblom's shows and assemblies. Among their many jobs are seeing that the footlights are working, knowing the time for cues, sound effects, and special spotlights, and making certain that all stage props are in their proper places. The members of the Stage Crew, under the leadership of Mr. Johnson, can always be relied upon for help in school productions.

Turning the Spotlight On the Events of the Year

The members of the yearbook staff can be seen in the initial stages of planning the 1953 Eagle. But this is only the beginning. All through the year the literary staff continues to search for interesting suggestions and to develop varied techniques that will capture the highlights of each season at Lindblom. Hour after hour is spent in assembling facts about our school, in creating new ideas for pictures, in writing and editing copy, in proof reading, and in other essential details. To the business staff is entrusted the very important day-to-day assignment of managing all matters of finance. On a happy day in May, however, when it is time for the Eagle to appear, the climax of all annual activities is reached.

This year's staff has worked under the direction of Miss Hogan, literary sponsor, Mr. Swanson, business adviser, and Mr. Mulvaney, advertising manager. The staff hopes that each Lindblomite who, through its purchase, has contributed to the success of the 1953 Eagle will enjoy sharing with them in this adventure of telescoping time.

Breaking Into Print With News About Lindblom

Behind every page of the Lindblom Weekly is a story of journalistic activity, lively interest, and real effort by each member of the staff. With newsy items and vital statistics on every page, the Weekly keeps the readers posted on life at Lindblom. Page one unfolds all the important happenings of the school, while the second page features editorial comment along with the popular Spotlite, which gives portrayals of outstanding seniors. Eager readers find page three bulging with information about individuals, clubs, and activities, but for sport scores, a play-by-play description of the latest game, and athletic events everyone turns to the last page.

Searching for interesting facts around which to weave a good story occupies every minute of the day for the busy reporters, while the page editors and their assistants work around the clock selecting and editing the best material available for each column. A capable corps of artists, photographers, and typists are always on call to prepare attractive sketches and readable copy. Headed by Joyce Buhai and sponsored by Mrs. Harriet Brown, the entire editorial staff of the Weekly can be relied upon to make each issue informative and stimulating. Business manager, Joan Hansen, Mr. Solomon, the business adviser, and their entire staff do a splendid job of getting the subscriptions in and the papers out on schedule.

"Join up! Subscribe to the Weekly!" . . .

"Your second Eagle payment is due."

These are familiar phrases overheard at division time when the Weekly and Eagle salesmen try to sell and collect for their respective publications. The sales forces work diligently to put their publications across to their prospective customers. No matter how good a publication is, if it is not made available to the public its value cannot be appreciated. The salesmen wear out a path to their respective offices before the semester ends. Finally the happy day arrives when they hear those wonderful words: "Your audit is complete. Everything balances."

Mr. Solomon is in charge of the Weekly sales staff, and Mr. Swanson supervises the Eagle corps. With a fine sense of responsibility and integrity, each salesman performs an invaluable service for Lindblom and at the same time adds to his own business experience.

EAGLE AD CLUB

An essential part of the Lindblom Eagle is the Advertising Club. These ambitious students, who sell space to merchants of our community, help in part to finance the cost of our annual. In his first year as sponsor of the group, Mr. Walter Mulvaney with his corps of super-salesmen has done an outstanding job. With these fine publicity agents to represent us in the community, our project is assured of a courteous reception. In turn, the members of the group gain personal experience that is most helpful to them.

DANCE COMMITTEE

With an active group in charge of the social center dances, which are held every other Friday at Lindblom, everyone who attends is guaranteed a good time. Our student committee, under the supervision of Miss Garrison, works diligently to make these affairs successful. They decide on a name for each dance, publicize the coming event, help with the dancing instruction, and decorate the gym. The group enjoys acting as hosts and wants the guests to share their pleasure. You're not in the social swim at Lindblom if you failed to attend "Blue Violins" or "Cupid's Arrow," two very successful dances of the current year.

The friendship circle of the Senior Girls' Council binds the members in spirit and in song.

Gracious Hostesses Preside At Lindblom's Social Hours

Twinkling tapers, gleaming silver, and a fine array of china, all are part of the pleasing atmosphere that pervades the Girls' Social Room during those festive periods when the senior Councilors entertain faculty, friends, or classmates at a tea. In addition to serving as hostesses at social events, the Councilors learn the manners, niceties, and social graces that help provide a rich, full life for every girl. In working together and helping each other, many true and fast friendships are made and many hours of fun are experienced. Each member of the Council, who is elected to the position by her classmates and teachers, does her best to uphold the ideals of loyalty and honor long associated with this group of girls.

The twenty-four senior Councilors, who are under the guidance of Mrs. Rule, are easily recognized at Lindblom, not only by their bright red jackets, white skirts, and owl insignia, but by their fine sense of dependability, high scholastic ratings, and enthusiastic participation in school affairs. The Girls' Social Room and the Council have a very special place in the affections of every Lindblomite. A beautiful new rug purchased this year testifies to the fact that the students always support Council projects.

Jackets at Lindblom, no matter the color, signify girls of high caliber. True to form, the Pink Jacket girls are a select group of young ladies from the Mail Service organization. Lindblom is especially indebted to them for their splendid cooperation in matters of school routine. In the midst of their many duties the girls find time for festivities too. Each semester they entertain at an induction and farewell tea. On these occasions they welcome new members and bid adieu to those who are graduating.

Members of the Mail Service Cabinet are girls who have learned the value of promptness, accuracy, and speed in doing each assignment which has been entrusted to them.

Paging Miss Lindblom

One of the most important aspects of high school organization is the maintenance of an efficient system of clerical assistance. Girls who belong to the Mail Service group are the core of a training program which supplies both the faculty and the office staff with necessary help. They perform many essential tasks such as delivering messages, collecting absent slips, and filing. This group, which is sponsored by Mrs. Atkinson, is one of Lindblom's busiest organizations. The girls receive training which helps them to form good habits of work and to understand the importance of clerical detail.

With a justified flourish the owner of an "S" certificate displays his award, symbol of many hours of superior performance in scholastic pursuits. In acquiring this certificate he has achieved an "S" average in all his majors and not less than "E" in his minors. The thrill of accomplishment comes to each member of the group when he realizes that he has done his best to be true to his own standards and those of the school. Students thus honored receive one point toward their Golden Eagle, the emblem which every Lindblomite hopes to possess before he graduates. A large proportion of the "S" certificate group qualifies for this special award, which suggests what every student knows, that the "top bracket" of our Honor Society contributes outstanding citizens to Lindblom.

The officers of the Honor Society, who are upper classmen, are responsible for many details connected with this organization. They assist Miss Groves, the sponsor of the society, in making arrangements for the special assembly at which members are honored, and they preside at the ceremony of induction when pins and certificates are awarded by Mr. Yates and Mr. Palmer. The officers of the group may be from either the Honor Society or the "S" certificate group.

Awards Bestowed in Pursuit of Learning

Steady and conscientious effort directed toward one's studies is rewarded with membership in the Honor Society. The proud wearer of an Honor Society pin can point to an average of "E" or above in his majors with no minor less than "G." Lindblom bestows recognition upon the members of this group at a special assembly which occurs at the beginning of each semester. This is an event which everyone looks forward to because it is a public acknowledgment of the efforts of those who have gained admission to the group and a source of encouragement for those who are striving toward the same goal. Not only good scholarship, but high ideals of service toward Lindblom and an interest in many varied activities distinguish the members of the Honor Society.

Celebrating Fiesta Time In the Spanish Tradition

Whether it is singing Spanish songs, breaking the pinata, or preparing baskets of food for needy families at Christmas, the Spanish clubs combine fun, learning, and service in the performance of these varied activities. Clubs are formed in advanced Spanish classes to present South American customs to our students. Pertinent films are often shown, holidays are celebrated as they might be in the country of the language, and the business of the meeting is carried on in the native tongue.

Dressed in costumes, some of the members create a true Spanish atmosphere with their gay sombreros and serapes. At one meeting of Las Mesclados a mock Mexican bullfight was staged. Lindblom's sport cheers were translated into Spanish and demonstrated by some of our cheerleaders. Both pleasure and conversational skills are gained through such enjoyable club sessions.

At each meeting of the Latin Club informative and amusing entertainment is presented by the members. The work of organization is carried on by committees who are in charge of each program. Early in the semester "Quirites" was chosen as the name for all the Latin Clubs and a constitution was adopted which was modeled on the Roman idea of government. During the club meetings programs are offered which show the Roman way of life and which acquaint the students with different aspects of Rome's civilization.

The Romans were fond of the drama, particularly comedy, and club members like to imitate their style when they present amateur dramatics at their meetings. Many are the parodies on serious subjects, such as Caesar crossing the Rubicon or Aeneas bidding farewell to Dido. Club meetings give the students an opportunity to enjoy Latin in action.

LATIN CLUB

In the spring of each year the classical students of Illinois celebrate "Latin Week." Tours of museums in the Chicago area and special lectures are on the agenda. Students gain a firsthand knowledge of classical antiquities located in our city and meet other students who are interested in the same field of study. The observance of "Latin Week" is a special project which all members of Quirites participate in together.

FRENCH CLUB

Members of the French Club are doing more than dreaming about a trip to France; they are already embarked on the first leg of their journey. Each one gets a clearer picture of the people of France through the meetings and programs of the club group. French songs are often sung and French plays are dramatized. Sight-seeing tours are organized through pictures and posters. These activities enable the students of French to get a better understanding of the picturesque country and its people.

The lads with the white shirts, ties, and armbands, whom one sees in the corridors of Lindblom each Thursday, are members of the Senior Boys' Council. They hold a formal council meeting weekly at which they discuss plans and exchange ideas which are for the mutual benefit of all Lindblomites. Although they are concerned with school welfare in general, one of the special projects they sponsor is the publication of the annual Pep Book. This helpful handbook gives a preview of events for the current year and presents an over-all picture of our high school organizations. Since it includes the lineup of the fall football squad and pertinent information about all the clubs at Lindblom, it is of interest to both old and new students.

In addition to writing the Pep Book, the boys are responsible for the maintenance of the Boys' Social Room, which is the center of their activities. The Council, consisting of twenty senior boys, is directed by Mr. Janousek and Mr. Boucher. A boy is elected to membership in the Council by his classmates and teachers.

Every Lindblom student benefits from the work done by the Inter-Cabinet Council. The projects of the Council include participating in school citizenship campaigns, keeping the lunch room and corridors clean, sponsoring two dances a year, and improving student morale. Delegates are chosen for the council from the various clubs, organizations, and divisions in Lindblom. The delegates relay decisions and plans made at the meetings to the groups they represent. Conversely, ideas from the student body can be suggested to the council representative. This organization aims to function as a democratic unit and to make all Lindblomites aware of their role in student government.

The officers of this large and rapidly expanding organization are: Robert White, president; Stanley Spiewak, vice-president; Leon Pirofalo, secretary; and Elmer Dabish, treasurer. Members of the club receive special instruction which will be invaluable if they wish to continue their architectural interests. Participation in a group such as this often leads to the development of worthwhile hobbies and pursuits. As a first step toward building a career in architecture, the boys discuss sketches and models with Mr. Hunter. This is a field which offers unlimited opportunities for advancement. Instead of dreaming about "The House of Tomorrow," the members are acquiring information and skills which will turn dreams into reality.

Talented students who are studying art as a major comprise the membership of the Lindblom Art League. This group, which is under the supervision of Mr. Schmitt, is organized primarily to encourage artistic ability. Whether the individual is training for a professional career in art or pursuing it as a hobby, his work in the League contributes immeasurably to the happiness of others and brings great personal satisfaction to the artist himself. The members of this group give generously of their time and talent to render service to Lindblom. Their attractive posters publicize many school activities, and their decorative designs provide glamor for dances and special festivities. Art League students have succeeded, not only in brightening Lindblom's corridors, but also in adding luster to her name by winning many awards and scholarships.

The demands of modern business require that speedy methods be used in turning out statistics for immediate use. Members of the Comptometry Club are prepared to meet the challenge, because a course in this subject enables one to handle columns of figures with the greatest of ease and accuracy. Anyone who is planning an office career or who wishes to specialize in accounting will find the ability to operate a comptometer an invaluable asset. It takes one semester to learn the skills necessary for operating a calculating machine. The course is taught by Miss Appleby of the Commercial Department.

Calculating Time On A Radio Show

To gain experience in radio techniques is the purpose of the Radio Guild. At their weekly meeting in the Girls' Social Room the members present original scripts, written, directed, and acted by themselves. The students in this organization not only obtain valuable experience through their endeavors, but they also enjoy combining work with pleasure. The programs of the Guild follow the pattern of a regular radio show as accurately as possible. Using the facilities available they produce ingenious sound effects to coincide with the requirements of the script. In fact, some of their productions are so unique that television talent scouts could profitably recruit new "stars" from this group.

THE STUDENT GUILD

The Student Guild is one of the unique organizations at Lindblom. There are no officers and the meetings are kept on an informal basis. The goals of the Guild are many and varied. They include stimulating the desire to learn, teaching cooperation with others, showing that learning is fun, and illustrating that pleasure is self-made. Students in 2A or above are eligible for membership. With Mr. Edgar Palmer to inspire the Guild, interesting projects are always afoot.

PROJECTION CLUB

Classes really appreciate the services of this group of movie-makers. In forty minutes they can take us to Afghanistan or to the moon. The members of the Projection Club enjoy their work too, for they receive training that will make them popular in amateur movie circles. Our squad of student operators learns how to run film through the projector, how to adjust tone control, and how to master all the mechanical gadgets connected with the operation of the movie machine. Mr. Weckel and Mr. Lilek are in charge of the training required for membership in this organization.

The Best Of References

The Lindblom Library Club strives to make its members and the school more "library conscious." Under the leadership of Mrs. Kramer the group plans many activities such as field trips, faculty open house, and a semester awards party.

The members assist in the library during their free periods by checking books, delivering study hall slips, shelving, and preparing attractive displays. Pins and certificates are awarded at the end of the semester for service to the school. Among the books is offered the opportunity to serve Lindblom and to gain personal experience that is profitable and enjoyable.

Every boy likes to dream about climbing behind the wheel of a fire truck, but fire marshals at Lindblom were lucky enough to have such an opportunity during National Fire Prevention Week in October. The boys had a chance to examine fire-fighting equipment and to get pointers on fire control from members of the Chicago Fire Department.

Lindblom's fire marshals do their part throughout the year to make fire prevention a reality. Whenever fire bells break the regularity of a class period, the boys are at the exits and street crossings to assure fast but orderly evacuation of all students from the building. Other marshals see that the building is empty and that the necessary equipment for fighting fires is in good condition. With the support and guidance of an organization like the fire marshals, the chance of disaster by fire can be eliminated. The group responsible for these serious duties is under the direction of Mr. Freese.

Keeping posted on corridor conditions is the task which is entrusted to Mr. Jepsen's staff of hall guards. Everyone at Lindblom knows how important are the duties they perform. Ever watchful, our sentries serve the school by maintaining order in the halls, guarding the lockers, and keeping the corridors free of debris. Their famous query, "Where's your pass?" is an assurance that our school will be without unwelcome visitors and loitering students. The work of the hall guards is a two-way assignment. They perform a duty that boosts school morale and contributes to good citizenship, and each student endorses the service when he freely shows his pass and cooperates with our "vigilantes."

A Halloween atmosphere pervades the halls of Lindblom twice a year when the Sub Debs have their initiation ceremony. The freshies dress in a "mix and match" style that often produces hilarious effects. Books are carried in buckets, and the girls hold baby dolls in their arms. At the instigation of the sophomores the girls go through this initiation in order to become members of the Sub Debs, an organization which is made up of freshmen and sophomore girls. During the year the club offers special programs, celebrity teas, fashion shows, plays, and parties. The girls enjoy working together to make these activities successful. With such a wide range of events to choose from, the Sub Debs have a busy season from September to June. Miss Calkins is in charge of this enterprising group.

As he vainly wanders around, he is approached by a neatly dressed young man wearing a white shirt. Quietly, to his relief, the late-comer is conducted to a seat by the older student.

He and many other boys, under the guidance of Mr. Crofts, the sponsor, direct their energies toward the service of our school. They are on duty at assemblies and many evening performances, thereby assuring all Lindblomites of courteous and efficient help at all times.

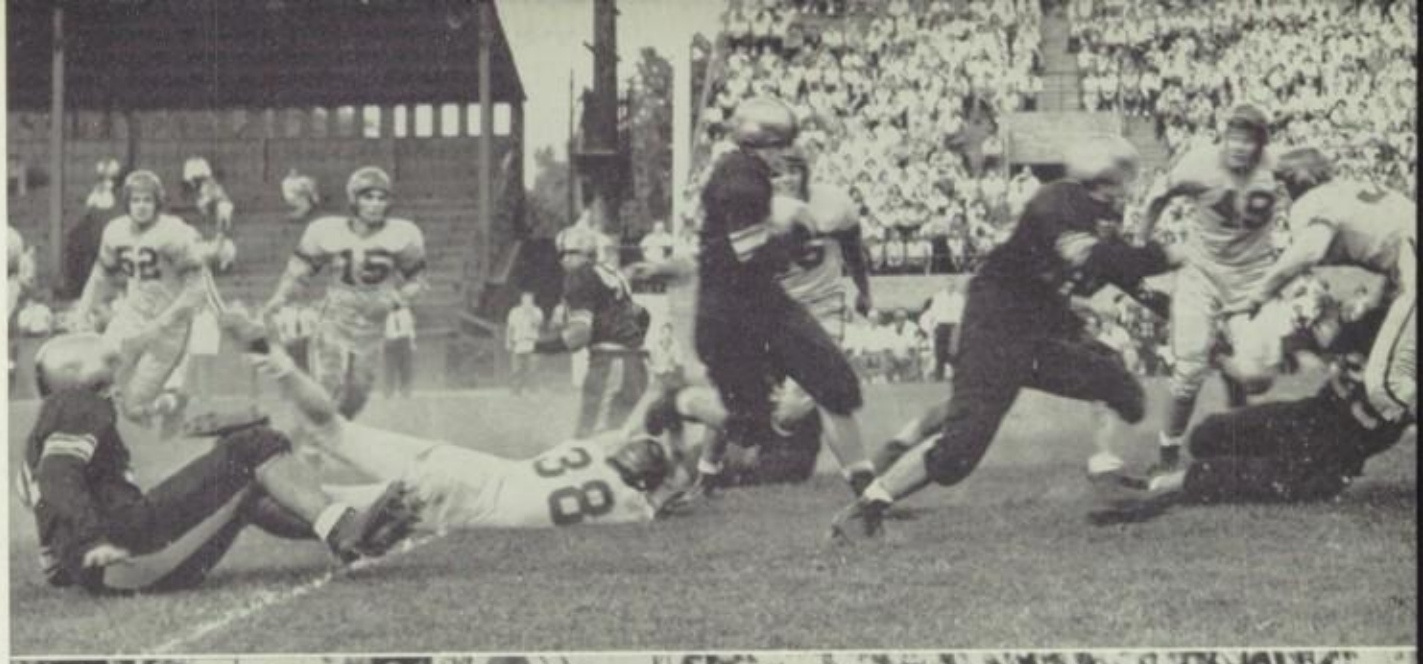
Beginning in the spring and continuing throughout early fall, Coach "Dutch" Von Bremer drills his grid men until he is ready to present them for their fans to see and their opponents to regret. The squad remaining at the termination of his cutting and scrimmaging is unfailingly a hardened group of able and agile pigskin experts. As far as the boys are concerned, playing the regular season is reward enough for the training grind. They are eager to work and play for "Dutch," who has a fine record as a football coach. In his five years as head mentor the Eagles have added two city championship shields to the walls of Lindblom.

Fundamental knowledge and initial experience for future varsity endeavor is gained in daily teamwork by the frosh-soph squad. Under the tutoring of Coach John Labant, they develop skill and team play in competition with other frosh-soph elevens. Precision in blocking, tackling, and ball-handling are but a few of the techniques acquired by the squad as they practice the tactics of good football strategy. Many hours are spent by the boys on the gridiron until each member learns to perform his particular duties efficiently and to function smoothly in whatever position the needs of the game demand. Eager, anxious soph recruits are gradually transformed into expert linemen and shifty backs. The soph team has a chance to test its ability against that of the varsity in post-season practice games.



The first game of the season against Fenger saw the varsity gaining experience against a tough foe. In the picture at the top of the page a breakaway through the line results in a first down for Lindblom. With the fans watching in the background our boys execute a pass play that really clicks. Coach Von Bremer and Reggie Abdul, in the picture below, seem grim when a plunge for a first down is stopped. Conners involuntarily shows the needed distance. A Fenger back, in the lower left hand picture, rips through the line into our secondary.

The Maroon and Gold Takes to the Field

Even though the varsity encountered stiff opposition from the opening kickoff with Fenger until the final contest with C.V.S., it was an exhilarating experience to be part of the football crowd when the Eagles were performing this fall. Every time the band marched out on the field or the girls led the cheering section Lindblomites gave out with their best applause and rallied to the defense of our team. Those on the side-lines played their part in supporting our boys, and when the strains of the Loyalty March resounded over the gridiron the varsity knew they had the wholehearted backing of their schoolmates.

This same spirit of interest and loyalty prevailed throughout the season, as was shown by the attendance. All the faithful fans who turned out for the squad's games weren't disappointed. The team's spirit, sportsmanship, and play kept the crowd excited and proud to be Lindblomites. As succeeding autumns roll around, the same atmosphere will prevail; only the participants will change. No matter what the scoreboard reads, "Come on, team, You're doing fine," is a perennial cry that floats over the gridiron as the Lindblom varsity performs.

Action was the keynote of the 1952 football season as the Eagles were pitted against a rugged schedule of outstanding teams. Scenes, such as those shown above of the Fenger game, were typical of many which thrilled Lindblom fans throughout the season.

Opening against our traditional pre-season rival, Fenger, a green Lindblom squad received its first taste of bitter competition in losing 33-0. This practice game was followed by the first Central Section game versus Gage Park. The Eagles, still not sure of themselves but gaining confidence as the game progressed, were downed by the spirited Owls, 25-6.

Lindblom then found itself, stiffened its defense, and registered two consecutive tie games; the Eagles battled Hirsch and Phillips to scores of 6-6 and 7-7. Playing perhaps their best game of the year against the Blue Devils Lindblom fought from behind, inspired by the playing of co-captains Ralph Knoeble and Reggie Abdul, to come within two points of whipping a highly-touted Tilden eleven, 14-12.

of the 1952 Eagles

Top—A jarring desperation tackle stopped this run, but our man held on to the ball.

Bottom—Uncounted hours on the field practicing blocking and tackling built the team into a co-ordinated unit.

The second meeting with Fenger was a testimonial to the team's improvement during the season. Although Lindblom lost 32-25, the score contrasted sharply with the first game of the year, played against the same outfit. The dauntless spirit of our lads professed itself frequently throughout the season, but especially in this game. A play-off berth hung in the balance as our last game approached. The Eagles battled valiantly but came out on the short end of a 33-6 score with C.V.S.

The season's record of two ties and five losses belied the ardor and effort displayed by the maroon and gold on the gridiron. The Eagles at the finish of the year were a far superior squad to that fielded by Coach "Dutch" Von Bremer in early September. The tremendous degree of advancement was a credit to the team, its coach, and the school. Experience obtained in 1952 will be a great help on the football field when the pigskin parade starts again in '53, since enough varsity men are returning to stimulate optimism from the players and students.

REBOUND STRUGGLE . . . A Fenger man tries to outreach Joe Hajost for the ball.

Despite a slow start yielding just three victories in eight practice games, Lindblom's Senior Cagers showed abundant promise and ability in their pre-season schedule. Highly creditable scores, such as a 67-62 loss to C.V.S., which finished fourth in the city, and a 64-57 defeat by a strong De Paul quintet, exhibited an indication of the excellent grade of basketball to come.

The annual I.I.T. Christmas Tourney issued further warning of Lindblom's potentialities as the Eagles streaked by Morgan Park and Steinmetz, triumphing 71-50 and 62-53, respectively, to gain the quarter-finals. In a heartbreaking double-overtime Lane's Indians edged by our squad, 71-70.

Facing a powerhouse of opponents in Central Section play, Lindblom lost two of its first three games. A 67-56 victory over Englewood was sandwiched between losses to Tilden, 58-54, and Du Sable, 67-64, in fiercely contested games. Lindblom then began a three-game winning streak, defeating Phillips, Farragut, and Harrison. A defeat by Gage Park, 58-51, was promptly followed by a victory over Kelly, 70-50.

The Eagles qualified for the playoffs by romping Dunbar in a crucial game, 64-41. Chances in the playoffs diminished and died as our first opponent, Sullivan, acquired a big lead and won going away, 90-66.

Co-captains of the squad were Jim Sammons, graduated at mid-year, and Ron Wallace, junior guard, who led the team in scoring. Two other regulars, Leon Sczepanski, six foot six center, and Joe Hajost, forward, are returning next year, along with new material from the frosh-soph team, to make Lindblom a definite threat for the city title.

"Shoot 'Em In the Baskets"

Innovating the new basketball system in grand style, Lindblom's Frosh-Soph Eagles amassed a season's record of 11-2 to gain second place in the city playoffs. The frosh-soph system, in which boys of first and second year are eligible to play, was initiated this season and replaces the junior teams which were for boys of limited height.

Building the team around his captain, guard Bill Martin, Coach Gus Jones assembled a spirited quintet that captured six of nine pre-season practice games. Central Section play was initiated in a hotly contested, see-saw battle with Tilden. The Eagles triumphed, 30-28. A total of eight victories against one defeat gained the Central Section title for Lindblom. The single defeat was at the hands of Wendell Phillips when the Eagles were downed by a score of 38-22.

Having qualified for the city playoffs, Lindblom met and vanquished Lane, 48-35. Two more successive victories in the quarter-finals and semi-finals found our sophs edging Tilden and Schurz by scores of 33-31 and 36-33, respectively. These victories brought Lindblom into the city finals where our team was pitted against a powerful, undefeated outfit from McKinley. The Eagles played a fast game but were rubbed out 37-29, finishing in second place in the city. It was a grand season of sport for Lindblom's basketball team and her fans.

Those who have seen the gymnasts perform at the Boys' Achievement Assembly or at any of their meets have witnessed a thrilling combination of talent in which skill, grace, and endurance are combined. When Jim Samuels demonstrates his ability on the parallel bars, one sees a performance which a professional acrobat would envy. Each boy on the squad is proud of the enviable reputation enjoyed by the gymnastic team at Lindblom, for our school has made a steady practice of collecting all the honors in this field. The boys spend much time, after as well as during school hours, mastering the parallel bars, horizontal bar, side horse, and long horse on which they compete.

The team holds several meets each year with other high schools. The most important contests are the City Championship and the Central A.A.U. meet in April, the outcome of which determines the best team in the city and midwest. One of the mainstays on this year's team is Ivory Hardy who took first place in each of the events last year. Under the guidance of Coach Smidl and Captain Lauren Young, the gymnastic team hopes to keep its long-standing record of gymnastic city champion intact when the April meets begin.

The Lindblom Sharks captured the Central Section title this year by winning six of their seven meets. They outscored their foes in both diving and racing events. The Sharks have fast men in every swimming event including the one hundred yard back-stroke and the four man relay. Our co-captains have both scored high individual honors: Dave Parris has never been defeated in the free-style event, and Paul Plociennik is one of the fastest back-stroke men in the city. Under the watchful eye of Coach Bohor the boys train diligently, and in future competition the team is hoping to continue its good record. To add to the interest and excitement of aquatic sport, an intramural marathon is being held this year to determine Lindblom's champion swimmer on each team. As the race moves into its final weeks each boy is striving to perfect his style so that he may qualify for the title.

"Who's on first?" is a familiar cry heard on the baseball diamond each spring during eighth and ninth periods as the team gets set for a new season. Coach Janousek starts training early in the year so the boys will be in good condition when the season gets under way. Each member of the squad works hard to develop good timing and coordination. Batting practice is held every day to warm up the team and to develop good baseball skills. Our "bushers" aim to perfect those "curve" balls and to give out with the kind of ball playing which will help them win new laurels. The 1952 baseball team had a good record, but was defeated in the semi-finals by our arch-rival, Tilden. With a strong team picked from the fall tryouts, Coach Janousek and his boys are making a bid for a successful season.

It's All in the Form

Golf and tennis, recently resumed at Lindblom, are capturing the interests of many young athletes. So many boys want to make the teams that elimination tournaments must be held. The players are taught the fundamental rules of the games and all the fine points of swinging a club and making overhead smashes. Both teams compete against other schools. In the spring of 1952 the golf team finished third and the tennis team fourth in the Central Section. Golf and tennis are difficult sports to gain an "L" in for the player must win one-half of his matches. But whether or not he triumphs in competition, he still gains ability which he can use for enjoyment or relaxation at any time during his life. The golf team is coached by Mr. Hunter and the tennis team by Mr. Weckel.

As Free As the Breeze

Coach Von Bremer

The Lindblom Skating Club did its share this year to keep Lindblom at the top. The Skating Team scored points in every major ice meet in which they participated, including three out-of-town contests. In January, 1953, Lindblom's team came in second in the city meet with co-captain Ralph Knoebel distinguishing himself as individual city champion. Other outstanding skaters were Toni Mock, Bill Smale, and co-captain Chuck Zordani, all of whom scored high in many events. Members of the team practice at city parks and arenas to gain the necessary stamina and skill which it takes to become a good skater.

In addition to coaching the Skating Team, Mr. Von Bremer also sponsors the Skating Club which includes both girls and boys who like to cut fancy capers on the ice. Whirling, gliding, and spinning across an ice-skating rink is sheer fun for these skaters, who put on a fine exhibition as they execute intricate steps on the ice.

Rivalry, noise, and excitement are in the atmosphere each week at Queen's as members of the Lindblom Bowling League set to downing the pins. Both boys and girls come out en masse to exhibit and improve their skill on the lanes, some for the fun of the game and others to establish new records in bowling.

Our bowlers have been kept very busy in tournament competition trying to surpass last season's array of trophies. In a nation-wide tournament in the spring of 1952 the "Pros" of the girls' league placed fourth of all teams entered. Nancy Eifert blasted a 532 scratch series to capture second place for the individual honors. The 'Eagles" of the boys' league took fifth place in their section. The National American Bowling Congress Tournament, held in Chicago this spring, organized a junior tourney for Chicago prep students. After qualifying at a city-wide elimination contest, four girls and one boy from Lindblom won the right to enter the A.B.C. tourney.

At the end of the season intramural bowling patches are awarded by Mr. Smith, bowling co-ordinator, to the members with high scores including handicap in competition.

Have you ever wondered why there is such excitement among the girls when the new G.A.A. Board and Cabinet members are announced? The fact is that the blue jacket, the coveted emblem which every active member of the G.A.A. cherishes, symbolizes achievement in athletics won through hard work in the girls' gym. Athletic ability, a pleasing personality, and good scholarship are the qualities taken into consideration when the gym staff and the G.A.A. Board and Cabinet choose new members. The climax of G.A.A. activities is reached at the semi-annual Girls' Assembly when awards are made and the worthy recipients publicly honored.

Since the Girls' Athletic Association has a large membership and a long list of activities, the wearers of the blue jacket have many special responsibilities. Each board member is entrusted with specific tasks which keep the complex machinery of the G.A.A. running smoothly. These duties must be performed capably and conscientiously to make the work of the entire organization a success.

Their Dream is Lettered In Maroon and Gold

"L.D." is a term which has a very special meaning for all Lindblom girls. It indicates an exclusive club sponsored by the G.A.A., but one which is open to every ambitious girl. The Lindblom Five Hundred Club is an organization to which girls who have accumulated five hundred G.A.A. points may belong. One thousand points are needed for an "L" but after achieving the half-way goal the girls are privileged to join the "L.D." group. There is a traditional initiation ceremony in which all the members participate at the beginning of each semester. Strange costumes are worn to school by the new members, and the day of fun is climaxed by the time-honored hike to Cantigny Woods. The girls plan parties, outdoor hikes, and various gymnastic activities as they all work together toward their common objective, the additional points they are earning for that coveted "L."

The Gym Is Their Domain

Girls active in gym and having a good scholastic average are eligible to join the Gym Leaders. These "white jacket girls of the gym" uphold the true Lindblom tradition of voluntary service. The members of this group serve three periods weekly in the gym by refereeing games, supervising proficiency tests, and assisting the teachers. This service is in addition to their regular gym class. These are the girls who have a genuine love for sports and help to interest others in athletic competition. One very special social function of this group is the "Leaders" tea at the end of the semester at which the girls take time out for fun and enjoyment.

Swimming is a vigorous form of exercise and yet allows time for fun and frolic. The swim leaders are an active group of top-notch mermaids who have that extra bit of drive and ambition which it takes to develop new skills and techniques. Hour after hour is spent down in the deep blue waters of our pool by these "water babies" under the supervision of Miss Hackenbroch. Besides their own swim periods these aquatic lassies assist the gym teachers in coaching other classes. At the end of each semester swimming tests are given to determine eligibility for life-saving and dolphin awards.

Quick maneuvers, fast-flying movements, and good wrist action are often seen during sessions of table tennis in the girls' gym. Table tennis is a very fast and enjoyable sport played on ping pong tables equipped with nets. Girls who are just learning the game may join a beginner's class where they are taught how to handle the paddle and ball, how to keep score, and how to develop various backhand shots and other tennis techniques.

Badminton is a popular, exciting game which is played with a small racket resembling that used in tennis and a birdie. The birdie is a light-weight object that is much harder to hit than one might imagine. Keeping the birdie in flight is the object of this fast-moving sport.

Once the girls have learned the basic steps of either game, tournaments are played which give the members experience in competition. The winners receive G.A.A. bars, and every girl who participates gains twenty-five points toward her letter. Under the supervision of a gym teacher and a G.A.A. Board member these extra-curricular activities may be enjoyed by any athletically-inclined lassie.

Tournaments Are Fun for Active Girls

Two extra-curricular activities which the G.A.A. sponsors and which our girls enjoy tremendously are team games and fencing. Cooperative effort and experience in team work are deciding factors in the Team Games classes. The girls who are enrolled in these groups choose teams and play a series of games in whatever sport is in season, as baseball, basketball, or volleyball. Members of the winning team are awarded G.A.A. bars. The best individual athletes are voted upon to make up an Honor Team of All-Stars. Intramural competition of this sort is exciting and keeps the girls on their toes all semester. Whether or not a girl is on the winning team, she has had a chance to enjoy the seasonal sports and to learn the rules of fair play.

The clashing sounds of foils are heard distinctly as one walks by the fencing class in Room 315. Members of this group are learning the fine art of fencing as well as earning points toward their school letter. The girls, after they have acquired sufficient skill in handling the foil, compete in a fencing tournament, and each semester a champion is selected on the basis of numerous contests. This sport, which is lots of fun, is quite popular with the Lindblom girls because it develops grace and poise.

The Picked Platoon, crack unit of the Lindblom R.O.T.C., has triumphed in city competition again this year, making a total of six consecutive championships. This record never has been equaled and probably won't be for a long time to come. As the boys go through their paces all heads are turned, for the clock-like precision of the platoon is unbelievable. Under the supervision of Sgt. Longshore, the boys drill long hours to perfect their military tactics. Their efforts, however, have not gone unrewarded. The trophies they have won are symbols of their unremitting perseverance and diligence. Lindblom has always been very proud of the Picked Platoon, and this year's unit has continued to uphold the finest traditions of both our school and the R.O.T.C.

Our Officers Set the Pace

The officers and men of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps have made the Lindblom unit one of the finest of its kind in the city. The meaning and importance of cooperation, discipline, and responsibility are constantly emphasized in instructing the cadets. The "R.O." wing of the building is the setting for marching formations and military maneuvers in which the cadets can be observed snapping to attention at the command of their superiors. The officers, moreover, get results. The steady improvement of the "green" cadets is a well-deserved reward for their hard work and patience.

Row 1—Capt. Barkstrom, 1st Lt. Bell, Captain Sandgren, M/Sgt. Parker.

Cadets Learn Army Routine

There are many activities in which a qualified cadet can specialize in he R.O.T.C. Among them are the monkey squad, the rifle team, and the drum and bugle corps. Working together in unison, the boys enjoy these activities and learn the value of both good comradeship and organized outine. If a cadet works hard, he will some day be rewarded by becoming n officer. The boys receive training which will serve as a firm foundation or whatever fields of endeavor they may select in the future.

Still Growing in Athletic Stature

Embossed in silver and gold, countless beautiful trophies, symbols of Lindblom's athletic achievements through the years, find a fitting setting in the show cases in the main corridor of the school. A new trophy case, a gift from the graduating class of June, 1952, indicates the continuing trend of athletic honors. Lindblomites can often be seen stopping to admire these cherished tokens, which represent every field of competition. Undoubtedly, sport enthusiasts have frequently felt compelled to emulate the same feats as they paused to gaze at the exciting cups on display. As all Lindblomites are aware, the winning of laurels by our championship teams and the R.O.T.C. stems from the efforts of ambitious students who work strenuously in competition to acquire athletic emblems. Inspired by the members of the coaching staff they spend many extra hours in perfecting individual skills and in developing cooperative team action. To bring honor and glory to our school such students willingly relinquish leisure time and personal pleasures. Symbolizing the fine esprit de corps of Lindblom's teams and platoons, the awards in the trophy cases serve as a lasting reminder of athletic triumphs, past and present.

Our Carnival Capers

Turn-About Is Fair Play

The "law" looks mighty displeased with conditions, especially the "D's." (Has anyone seen Mr. Palmer?)

Any resemblance is strictly coincidental.

Is this a familiar situation?

Are YOU the culprit? (Yes, that's Mrs. Baker in disguise.)

Lindblom's big show of the year, the "Lindblom Lark," sponsored by the school and the P.T.A., was held May 23, 1952. The high school community responded with enthusiasm to Lindblom's invitation to share in a "just for fun" activity, which was motivated by the need for special equipment in each department. Hundreds of friends of Lindblom came and saw our school in gala carnival attire.

The auditorium was the scene of sparkling entertainment offered by the speech, drama, and music classes. "Bailalaika," a revue which portrayed a village square in Europe, provided a transcontinental air of festivity with its gypsies and gay music climaxed with a fine rendition of "The Nutcracker Suite" by the A Cappella Choir. "Island Paradise" and "T.V. Or Not T.V." afforded mutual pleasure to both audience and cast. "Faculty Frolics," one of the most popular shows of the evening, caricatured certain types of student behavior and proved that teachers also have a sense of humor.

Each department planned some form of fun to make the Lark a successful venture. Numerous side shows, attractive booths, an art fair, and unusual decorations lent a festive atmosphere to the halls of Lindblom. Rounded out by the "Can Can" and "Gay Nineties Revue," given by the P.T.A., our carnival offered a variety of entertainment to everyone present.

Autumn Panorama

"We stand behind you, our Maroon and Gold," chant the cheerleaders, as the school year gets off to a good start.

A football rally offers a preview of Saturday's game. The team calls the signals and the students respond with vim and vigor.

This scene speaks for itself. The first marking period is just around the corner.

Mum Day brings out beaus and smiles when the red jackets conduct their initial sale of the year.

On your guard, men! The girls are taking up target practice in the "R.O." quarters.

In need of a disguise? Our artists will oblige by creating new faces for the Halloween masquerade.

Holiday Jubilee

"That class is closed," is often heard in Room 103 during programming for the spring semester.

"Swing your partners, all, and promenade the hall," shouts the caller to the square dancers in "Metrical Madness."

Initiation "daze" features weird make-up and strange antics. Is it worth it, girls?

Lorraine and Carole add their artistic touches to the main corridor as Lindblom gets ready to celebrate the Christmas season.

L.T.H.S. has its own coronation. It's a memorable evening for Joan, reigning as the Sno-Ball Queen, and her court, Nyela, Penny, and Joan W.

Can it be true? Is our stalwart senior councilor afraid of the girls?

The tree of all nations in the girls' gym is adorned with decorations from many countries.

Mid-Year Trends

Seniors take advantage of a career conference to learn about future opportunities.

The aim of every Lindblom athlete is to win the cherished "L" cup. Roy and Dotty are looking at the record of previous holders.

Ushering in the January graduates puts three of Mr. Crofts's men in a jovial mood.

The G.A.A. Board and Cabinet ring down the curtain at their semi-annual achievement assembly. Effort rewarded is the theme for this occasion.

What goes up must come down, boys! Grab it and keep those numbers popping on the scoreboard.

No secret admirer here! Arlene publicizes her valentine intentions.

Eagle camera catches the clean-up squad in action. After that very special tea the Councilors gather to wash the cups and to exchange gay chatter.

Our advice, Steve, is to let go. That ball will make better time without you.

Calendar Cavalcade

Introducing our own Johnny Ray! You'll get your point across without crying, Mike.

Greg and Kay choose a tune to their liking. Will it be jive or a dreamy melody for these Keen Teens?

The I.C.C. contest stressing good grooming has all Lindblomites alerted. Keeping in step with the campaign Carol and Judy are being extra careful about those hem lines.

In a prelude to spring vacation Helen and Bill enjoy a taste of freedom. "Down with the books," they exclaim gaily, suiting the action to the words.

Rain doesn't dampen the spirits of Ken and Arline. Maybe they're thinking of the adage, " . . bring May flowers."

When April approaches, "There's Music in the Air," at Lindblom. All our melody-makers combine their talents to produce sweet harmony at the traditional Spring Festival.

No, this is not the Easter parade. It's merely the L.D. initiation. All this for 500 points!

Is this an act that the music department rejected, Yvonne, or is it another version of spring fever?

Departure Time

Jim cautions Ron and Lew to be on the field at game time. Think you'll make it, fellows?

Could these girls be auditioning for a summer stock show? At any rate, such serious school topics as senior class ratings seem to be far in the background.

Spring landscapes are a perfect subject for sketching classes. Looks as if these artists like their work.

"You, the Night, and the Music," brings senior festivities to a climax as the June class promenades at the Edgewater Beach Hotel. Bonnie and Elmer agree that this is a night to remember.

Our sweet girl graduates enjoy a last get-together before their senior year draws to a close. No tears, girls?

In a final gesture of farewell Elaine, Jim, and Tom autograph Eagles for one another. As they bid adieu to classmates and friends at Lindblom, they reminisce over the experiences of four happy years.
